SITUATION

The property is located in the charming village of Berry Pomeroy, which has a sought-after primary school, village hall and 11th century church. This church, upon which much community life still centres, was featured in the film of Jane Austin's Sense and Sensibility. The village is surrounded by beautiful Devon countryside with ample opportunities for walking, riding and cycling in the midst of quiet rolling farmland.

More comprehensive needs can be met in Totnes, some 2 miles away. Originally this town was constructed at the highest navigable point on the river Dart. Today it is a bustling market town full of interest, with a wide range of shops and recreational facilities. It is very much the gateway to, and an integral part of the South Hams, an area designated as of 'Outstanding Natural Beauty', with its magnificent countryside, and historic small towns and villages.

Bordered to the north by the Dartmoor National Park and to the South by its superb beaches and river estuaries, this area offers the best of everything in terms of environment, culture and accessibility. The A38 expressway, situated some five miles from Totnes, connects the town with the vibrant cities of Exeter and Plymouth. Regional airports at both make the North and East of England and all parts of the continent within easy reach. High-speed mainline rail links to Paddington are also located in Totnes, taking you to London in around three hours.
