SITUATION

The property is located in an idyllic, private position at the end of a private lane. Wheal Rose is a small village approximately eight miles to the west of Truro city and just three miles outside of Redruth. The A30 is within a miles distance and offers east access and commuter links to surrounding towns and destinations. The north Cornish coast is within two miles and includes sandy beaches at Porthtowan, Portreath and Newquay.

The nearest major town of Redruth enjoys an often bustling town centre offering a wonderful mix of local and national shopping outlets. There are primary and secondary schools nearby with tertiary level of education available in nearby locations, also is Kresen Kernow, the archive of Cornish history. Redruth has a mainline railway station connecting to London Paddington and further afield to the north of England with local branch lines to north coast destinations.

The south coast can be found around eleven miles at Falmouth which is also the university town for Cornwall whilst Truro, the administrative and main shopping centre for the county is also within a reasonable commute.

DESCRIPTION

Meadowside is a highly appealing, sizable four bedroom family home of comfortable and roomy proportions. The property has been updated extensively by the current vendors and is stylishly presented ready for the next owners to enjoy immediately.

Stags understand that Meadowside underwent extensive renovations and remodelling in the 1980's and excluding the curved rear wall, was rebuilt using the more modern method of block cavity walls with insulation under a traditionally styled slate roof, this provides the perfect blend of 'old and new' boasting huge charm and character.
